

METROPOLITAN SYDNEY

What is an Allocation Zone?

An 'Allocation Zone' is an area that groups together towns, suburbs or localities where public housing is available. In non-metropolitan regions, they are usually named after the major town in the zone.

Below is a list of suburbs that are grouped into Allocation Zones. If you are applying for public housing you must name in your application the Allocation Zone where you wish to be housed.

If you'd like help in making your choice, your Client Service Officer will give you information about the suburbs or towns in the Allocation Zones.

Can I choose a suburb?

No. You cannot select a specific suburb. You may be offered housing in ANY of the suburbs that are grouped into the Zone you have selected. For example, if you choose "GW3 Blacktown" you will be offered accommodation in any of the suburbs listed for GW3.

The location of the property you are offered when it's your turn for housing will depend on where the next vacancy occurs that matches the type of housing you need.

Can I change my Allocation Zone?

Yes. If you are approved for wait-turn housing, you can change your chosen Zone at any time until you are given an offer of accommodation. If you wish to change your Zone you must advise your local office in writing.
